

SUING FOR $4,000,000.

The New England Iron Company Against the Metropolitan Elevated Railroad.
The suit of the New England Iron Company against the Metropolitan Elevated Railroad is now being tried, for the second time, in the Superior Court, before Judge O'Gorman. The plaintiff sues for $4,000,000 and interest thereon since 1875.

The plaintiff claims that on March 24, 1873, it made a contract with the Gilbert elevated road by which it agreed to build ten miles of the elevated road, ready for track laying, at the rate of $785,000 a mile. The agreement was that the construction was to begin when all the stock of the railroad company had been subscribed for and thirty per cent. of the purchase money paid in. The railroad company subsequently agreed to pay the entire amount, and $75,000 to another contractor, with the New York Loan and Improvement Company for the construction of the road at the rate of about $1,000,000 a mile. The plaintiff says that the company, the plaintiff says that the Loan and Improvement Company was formed of the directors of the New York and Hudson River Railroad, Mr. Garrison, G. M. Fullam, and Jos F. Navarro, whom they had associated with themselves. The Loan and Improvement Company had no stockholders but the Edgemere Iron Company and others who had a profit of $1,000,000 a mile, thereby making a profit of $1,000,000 a mile, and it is this profit on ten miles that it sues to recover.

The court also asserts that the contract alighted to be not a complete one, but merely provisional and incomplete. Mr. William Foster, Jr., the President of the railroad company, had drawn up a contract, further, after the drawing of this alleged contract, the Elevated Railroad Commissioners had materially altered the plan, so as to make it differ from all previous plans. Again, in the fall of 1873, the New England Iron Company had gone out of business, and the plaintiff had to take different occasions before 1875, its treasurer had sworn that it was insolvent. It was, therefore, entirely unable to carry out the original plan, and that, owing to the fall in value, it made a profit of $600,000 a mile, and it is this profit on ten miles that it sues to recover.

The company was marched around to the Post Office, while somebody followed carrying his weapons. When arraigned before the Commissioner, he said that New York was a very wicked place, where bad men abounded, and that he had armed himself in order to be protected.

He was locked up for violation of the ordinance prohibiting the carrying of pistols with a permit, and of the law prohibiting the concealment of concealed weapons, which applies to his knife.

"Will he be a lucky man if he gets these back," said the reporter, "and showed the concealed armory to the reporter.

GUNNING FROM COLORADO.

One Gun, Two Glass Pistols, and a One-Foot Knife its Unvaluable Armament.
A tall, sinewy man of about 35 entered the saloon of Eisemann & Schneider at 234 Bowery yesterday afternoon with the spring loops of the plains. He was dressed in a blue suit, and beneath his coat something made of wood protruded. Going to the bar, he ordered a drink, and invited the crowd to join him. As he had evidently had enough, Mr. Schneider ordered the bartender not to serve him.

"You won't let me have a drink?" yelled the stranger. "Do you know who I am? I am a cowboy from Colorado! Look at this!"

So saying he threw open his coat, and displayed a broad belt studded with immense cartridges, among which were thrust two long loops of Cooper's revolver.
